Floods Drive Germans From Their Homes

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—Thousands of Germans fled their homes early today as one of the century's worst storm floods breached dikes along the entire North Sea coast.

Strong winds and raging waters played havoc with communications. There was no official announcement of casualties but unconfirmed reports said a number of people, caught in their sleep by the floods, had drowned.

Damage was estimated to have already surpassed $250 million.

Dikes gave way first in the port city of Bremerhaven. Hundreds of men, including American soldiers, worked through the night to close the breaks with sandbags.

Air raid sirens were sounded in Cuxhaven on the Elbe River estuary when the high water swept over the dikes and flooded thousands of basements.

Farms in the fertile lowlands between Bremen and Cuxhaven and south of Husum were among the first to be evacuated.

In the Emsland, near the Dutch border, a dike was reported to have breached on a length of almost 900 yards.

Soon, there were more reports of breaches multiplied and a special disaster alert was sounded for police, fire brigades and the army along the whole of the North Sea coast.

In a driving rain, thousands of people waited on roofs or in the top floors of their houses to be evacuated by rubber rafts. In some regions, rescuers reported a shortage of boats.

The refugees, some only in their nightclothes, were taken to temporary shelters in schools, townhalls or hospitals in high-lying areas.

Hamburg, a city of two million, appeared worst hit by the floods, which in some parts brought the high tide level to 12 feet above normal.

Residential and industrial areas along the Elbe River section of the city were submerged. In downtown Hamburg, the waters reached the city hall. The floods also entered the Elbe River Tunnel, a vital link for motor traffic.

Evacuated persons, carrying belongings in suitcases, were seen rushing through the streets as the waters advanced. The scenes recalled the nights following the air raids on the city during World War II.

Colleges Get Construction Ground Rules

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Ground rules under which colleges can proceed with their construction program were outlined for college presidents today by Comptroller L. A. Mashburn and Purchasing Agent Mack Sturgis.

The University of Arkansas and seven state colleges have about $7.5 million to spend under the construction program drawn up at a 1961 special legislative session.

Sturgis and Mashburn told the presidents:

"They may make their own architectural contracts but must file these with the comptroller's office.

"They must get approval of the purchasing agent on all plans and specifications drawn up by the architects.

"They may open their own bids, but the apparent low bid will have to be inspected and approved by the purchasing office before the contract can be let.

"Vouchers for payment of work done must be channeled through the purchasing office and they will not be paid by the comptroller until they are approved there.

"The rules do not apply to any construction work performed prior to today.

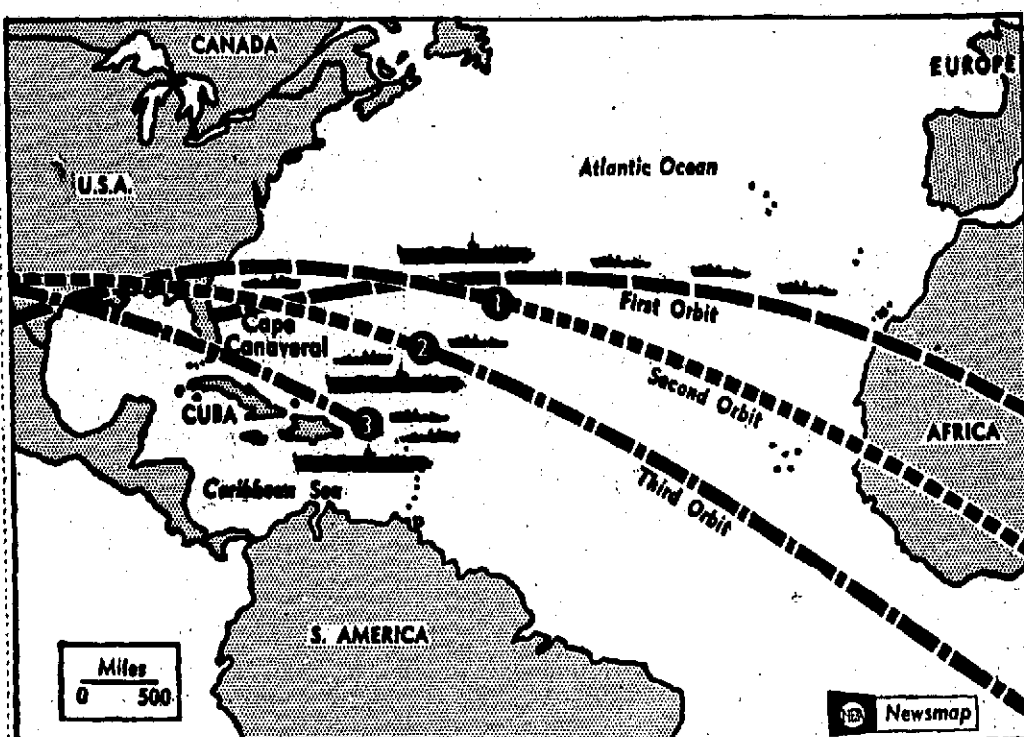

"The rules went into effect when the attorney general's office delivered a formal opinion stating that the Arkansas Supreme Court had approved an act appropriating funds for the construction.

"The opinion was delivered and read to the presidents' meeting today. The university and all colleges were represented.

CAPSULE COVERAGE—Elaborate precautions have been taken to make sure that Mercury astronaut John Glenn and his capsule are retrieved as soon as possible after landing. Twenty-four ships and scores of aircraft are positioned in the Atlantic for this purpose. If anything goes wrong right after blast-off and the capsule does not go into orbit, ships are stretched along the line of flight all the way to Africa. If it is decided to end the flight after only one orbit, Glenn will be picked up at position (1) on map; at the end of two orbits, at (2); and at the end of three, at (3). The fleets are composed mainly of destroyers and aircraft carriers, with both land and sea-based planes and helicopters.

Katanga Has Toned Down Conditions

By DENNIS NEED

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (the Congo) (AP)—The Katanga Assembly today toned down its conditions for accepting the Kitona agreement and ending the province's secession.

The legislators in an obviously conciliatory gesture omitted all reference to the United Nations and raised fresh hopes that differences between the Leopoldville and Elisabethville authorities can be settled by peaceful negotiations.

Assembly President Charles Mutaka issued a communique embodying the terms of a resolution passed before the Assembly broke up Thursday. It greatly toned down conditions of an earlier motion and considerably enhanced chances of agreement between Katanga and the Leopoldville government.

The new resolution says the Kitona agreement will serve as a basis for discussion to settle the Congo conflict and insists that settlement must be reached by peaceful negotiations "as soon as possible."

The resolution calls on the central government of Premier Cyrille Adoula to guarantee it will take no action against civil and military officials who have served Katanga during its 18 months of independence. It also demands that officials hostile to Katanga authorities should not be sent here in any administrative capacity.

But the new resolution drops earlier demands for portfolios in the central government—specifically for that of defense minister—and for a pledge from the central government renouncing the use of international forces for settling internal Congo problems.

The resolution also omitted an earlier demand that the United Nations cease all hostile acts and interference in Katanga, and a demand for the withdrawal of Ethiopian troops from the province.

Anti-American Demonstration

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—About 300 Dominican University students and other youths staged a noisy anti-American demonstration Thursday. Student leaders discounted its significance, saying the demonstration represented the view of a hostile minority.

The demonstrators paraded downtown shouting "Yankee dogs go home!" and other anti-American slogans, burned a U.S. flag in front of the National Palace and hurled stones at three U.S. correspondents. Other Dominicans in the crowded shopping areas gave the marchers no encouragement.

Fred K. Blanton, 83, Dies Here

Fred K. Blanton, aged 83, a resident of Hope for about two years, died Thursday in a local hospital. He was retired and lived on West 4th St. There are no known survivors.

Another Kennedy May Seek Office

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Edward M. Kennedy, youngest brother of the President, said today he may announce in March or April whether he will seek a seat in the U.S. Senate.

Kennedy, who arrived here from Athens, Greece, on route to Warsaw, Poland, told reporters the purpose of his private trip was to study the effects of European economic integration upon the economy of Massachusetts, his home state.

He has been reported planning to run for the Democratic nomination for senator against the Massachusetts attorney general, Edward J. McCormack Jr.

Mississippi Convict's Life Eventful

LYNN, Mass. (AP)—Life has been eventful for the blond, 25-year-old, former Southern farm boy. But not always pleasant.

Kimble Berry got himself into the Army at 14—and the Korean War. He stumbled into prison and out again. He was convicted (unjustly, he says) of manslaughter after a fight with an older man. He has stumbled into marriage twice, and out once. And he stumbled into a bizarre rendition case involving the states of Mississippi and Massachusetts.

Without too much to be proud of, he prizes his honorable discharge from the Army. He explains, "My captain said I was a good soldier, but just too damned young. If I could have stayed in, though, my life probably never would have gotten messed up."

Now, with a young wife, a baby and a job, he hopes life may be less eventful — and happier. He has had enough of being a fugitive in one of the strangest cases of its kind on record.

It was a case so strange that Massachusetts' Gov. John A. Volpe refused to send Berry back to Mississippi after hearing evidence to support Berry's plea for sanctuary. Berry said he fled north, fearful of participating in what he said was a scheme involving his release from prison to recover $300,000 burglary loot.

Driving a costly Cadillac, he arrived in Lynn early in December. He went to police. With 5½ months left to serve, he told police of being suddenly offered freedom and a reward. He said he was given the car, money, a driver's license and a gun for the purpose of getting money purportedly cached in an Arkansas bank safe deposit box by another convict in the Parchman prison. He named prominent persons as linked with his release. Their names were brought out later in a Mississippi legislative committee probe.

Berry is learning to be a roofer. At night, he is scrubbing, painting, putting on wallpaper. He and his 17-year-old wife have bought a second-hand stove and a refrigerator, also second-hand. Friends and relatives have chipped in other furniture, chairs, old lamps.

He never wants to return to Mississippi, he says.

Won't Visit U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department has barred Katanga President Moise Tshombe from visiting the United States.

His absence from the Congo would interrupt and jeopardize progress toward unification of that country, the department said Thursday.

CD Director Questioned About Plane

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Joint Legislative Audit Committee questioned state Civil Defense Director Owen Payne Jr. sharply today about a $700 shortage in his agency and use of a state-owned plane to attend football games.

Payne, who appeared before the committee for about 40 minutes, blamed a former employee for the shortage and said he had reported the matter to law enforcement authorities.

The committee was told the employee now is working for another state agency.

It ordered auditor Orvel M. Johnson to invite the man to explain the matter to the committee at its next meeting.

Regarding the plane, Payne said persons who used it to attend football games had paid for the fuel and he felt they had earned the right to use it by working nights and weekends on their own time.

The plane was furnished to Civil Defense by the federal government. Payne said none of the taxpayers' money had been spent on the trips.

Payne also was questioned about a radio transmitter which Civil Defense purchased for cash in 1958 and for which an invoice cannot be found.

Payne said he was unable to locate the salesman who handled the sale and that the employee who represented Civil Defense has died.

Ouachita County Rep. E. L. Mosley asked Payne if Civil Defense normally makes purchases in cash.

Payne replied his office's entire accounting system had been revised and discrepancies such as those with which the committee was concerned could not now occur.

Intellectual Development

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy voiced hope today that America will develop a cult of excellence relating to education and intellectual development. He said it would help the nation meet its problems.

Kennedy stood on the porch outside his office and expressed the thought to 325 educators from 62 foreign countries and territories, from Argentina to Zanzibar.

The educators are just completing a six-months stay in the United States under the State Department's educational exchange program.

The program is designed to acquaint them with the American elementary and secondary educational system and train them in teaching methods in their special fields.

Next Move Is Up to Mr. K on Conference

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Diplomatic Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials are awaiting with intense interest Soviet Premier Khrushchev's next move on preparations for the forthcoming 18-nation disarmament conference at Geneva.

A new message from Moscow to the Western powers is expected within a few days.

There is growing doubt in some well-informed quarters here that Khrushchev, having been rebuffed on his call for opening the conference on the summit level, will decide to go to Geneva anyway.

Two reasons are advanced for this doubt.

In the first place the five Western Allies who will participate are unanimously opposed to Khrushchev's proposal. Even more importantly, it has failed to evoke enthusiasm among the neutral nations who would be involved.

In the second place, a decision by Khrushchev to go to Geneva with support only from chiefs of Soviet satellite countries would be interpreted as simply a propaganda maneuver and thus damaging to the prospects for progress in the disarmament talks.

In diplomatic discussions with nations outside the Soviet bloc, the United States and Britain have contended that the participating countries should get the negotiations off to a serious start.

President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk are known to favor an absolute minimum of speech-making at the outset.

A new message from Khrushchev is expected because he has not yet replied to messages from Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan turning down his summit proposal.

The exchanges began 10 days ago with a proposal by Kennedy and Macmillan that foreign ministers open the Geneva negotiations. Khrushchev replied that he thought the heads of government themselves should open the conference.

On Wednesday Kennedy and Macmillan objected to that procedure.

So far as is known here, aside from leaders in the Eastern European countries, only United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser has shown an interest in attending the conference. Nasser indicated he would go to Geneva if a majority of the leaders of the 18 nations agreed to do so.

Probably the most serious blow to Khrushchev's hopes came in Indian Defense Minister Krishna Menon's statement that Prime Minister Nehru would not attend and that a summit conference on disarmament at the start of negotiations would amount to a circus.

'Experts' on Communism Wrong

Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said today "far too many self-styled experts on communism" are giving out erroneous and distorted information.

In an article in the American Bar Association Journal, he wrote:

"Our fight against communism must be a sane, rational understanding of the facts. Emotional outbursts, extravagant name-calling, gross exaggerations hinder our effort."

Hoover did not identify his targets by name.

The FBI chief said the nation needs enlightenment about communism but it should be factual and accurate, and he added:

"We need more light and less heat."

He wrote that many non-Communists may legitimately take positions on issues which also are held by Communists.

"Their opinions, though temporarily coinciding with the party line, do not make them Communists," he added. "We must be careful with our facts and not brand as Communists any individual whose opinion may be different from our own."

The Marigold Isn't Blooming But the Little Flower Is Important Now to Girl Scouts

By MARY ANITA LASETER

The flowers in our verbal bouquet to you this month are marigolds. No, of course they don't bloom here in February, not even with a touch of false spring in the air. But there seems to be a pretty good run of marigold seeds throughout the whole country now, and we wondered why.

Well, it seems all of it is connected with the 50th anniversary of Girl Scouts in the United States on March 12. The Brownie Scout marigold has been developed specifically to commemorate the occasion. Whereas the Girl Scouts are concentrating on yellow flowers such as roses, tulips and daffodils, it's the little marigold that the Little Brownies are cultivating.

Brownie marigold is a dwarf, crested French double type, predominantly green and gold with, naturally, a touch of brown. If that sounds like the description of a little scout, so do the flower's attributes. It is easy to grow, blossoms quickly, is reasonably uniform, and is "dressed" in the proper colors.

In this part of our country the marigold is a familiar sight, as it is ideal for gardens where summers are extremely warm. This pretty flower comes in a lot of varieties and has been cultivated for 300 years or more. Though we mentioned the flower's growth in hot weather, we must not overlook some species of it which grow elsewhere.

There is a yellow corn marigold in Great Britain which is frequently found in cornfields all over England. When dried, it has been employed as hay. It is also used in Germany for dyeing yellow.

For some reason the French marigold and the African marigold are both natives of Mexico. Apparently, they are more like the flower we in Southwest Arkansas know.

It is almost beyond belief that marigolds could be used for hay in England or anywhere else, but after getting marigold pollen on your hands you can understand how the flower can be processed as dye in Germany.

Marigolds may differ in types, sizes, colors and uses, but the flower is still loved by people around the world. Various kinds of marigolds grow in approximately five million gardens now, but their number will, no doubt, increase this year with the activity of the Brownie Scouts.

Conference on Situation in Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara will fly to Hawaii this weekend to confer on the situation in Viet Nam with military commanders and diplomats in the Western Pacific area. It is McNamara's third such trip in the last two months.

At the Pearl Harbor meeting also will be U.S. Ambassador Frederick E. Nolting Jr. and Gen. Paul D. Harkins, the new top U.S. military commander in Viet Nam.

Going with McNamara will be W. Averell Harriman, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs. Also in the group from Washington will be Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Assistant Secretary of Defense Paul H. Nitze, in charge of military aid programs, and Brig. Gen. William B. Rosson, recently appointed as the head of the Army new Special Warfare Section.

McNamara announced after his first trip to Hawaii for conferences with Adm. Harry D. Felt, the Pacific commander, that he would make similar periodic checks on developments in Viet Nam and on the progress in the program to help Viet Nam counter the Viet Cong Communist threat.

McNamara and the others will leave Washington Sunday, and expect to return here Tuesday morning.

Cigarette Rise

LONDON (AP)—A committee of influential British physicians plans to ask the government to raise the price of cigarettes sharply and cut the price of pipe tobacco and Zavauda celebrated their 14th birthdays Thursday with a small family party. The quadruplets have a younger sister and an older step-brother. Their father, Andrew Azavada, is an inspector and packer at the Latrobe Die Casting Co.

Condemn Remarks of Lecturer

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—The Fayetteville Ministerial Association approved today a statement condemning remarks of a lecturer at the University of Arkansas, as published in the campus newspaper.

The Association said it disagreed with the views of Dr. Albert Ellis of New York reportedly outlined in a talk on sex, saying it gives the subject a "higher, holier and more constructive place in human relationships."

The university said it did not sponsor the appearance of Dr. Ellis and has expressed agreement with the Ministerial group.

The campus newspaper, the Arkansas Traveler, reported that Dr. Ellis spoke about 90 minutes Tuesday night on the campus. It did not say if his talk was sponsored.

Reaves May Run for Governor

MONTICELLO, Ark. (AP)—The name of Lee Reaves has been added to those figuring in speculation as a possible candidate for governor this year.

Friends of Reaves, a former state senator, are known to have suggested that he try for the governor's job.

Reaves, now dean of personnel for Arkansas A&M College here, said today that, as a state employee, he didn't feel at liberty to make any statement.

Reaves, 52, is a veteran schoolman and administrator. He served several terms as state senator while living at Warren before taking the A&M job. He was secretary of the State Senate at last year's legislative sessions.

ALC to Hold Meeting in Baton Rouge

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Legislative Council voted today to hold its May meeting in Baton Rouge, La. if it gets an invitation from the Louisiana legislature.

Purpose of the trip would be to study procedures of the Louisiana law making body, which then would be in regular session.

Perry County Rep. Paul Van Dalsen said he had a commitment from J. Thomas Jewell, speaker of the Louisiana House, to issue an invitation if the Council agrees to come.

"I think we could learn a lot down there," Van Dalsen said. "Here is a state that faces a $40 million deficit. It would be interesting to see how they get out of it."

Council chairman Russell Elrod expressed concern that the trip might be expensive, but Van Dalsen said a Baton Rouge meeting would not cost much more than a session in Little Rock.

"We could pool cars and cut expenses," Van Dalsen said. "And we might pick up some good pointers which would be worth the little extra money."

In other action today, the Council invited E. L. Angell, new director of the State Commission on Coordination of Higher Education Finance, to meet with the Council in March.

Little River County Rep. Marion Crank said he felt the Council would benefit from an expression of Angell's views on problems of higher education.

Sen. Ellis Fagan of Little Rock, who met Angell at a commission meeting Thursday, said he was extremely impressed both by Angell and by members of the commission.

"This man has broad experience," Fagan said. "And this board seems to have its feet on the ground. I think they will give you information about the colleges that you haven't been able to get before."

Angell will appear at a March 16 meeting.

The council also accepted committee reports and adopted a resolution memorializing Mississippi County Rep. E. C. (Gene) Fleeman, who died Feb. 4.

Troops Land in Georgetown to Quell Rioting

By CARL BLACKMAN

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—British warships landed battle-tired troops in this scarred and seared colonial capital today to help put down rioting against Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan's leftist regime.

British troops went ashore after four days of strikes and demonstrations had erupted into bloody street fighting. The demonstrators, civil servants, teachers, clerks and others, demand the resignation of Jagan.

The bloodshed seemed certain to set back Jagan's drive for quick independence for British Guiana, Britain's only South American colony, and his hopes for U.S. Alliance for Progress funds.

The British governor, Sir Walter Grey, broadcast repeated appeals for order and declared the violence had deferred all plans for British Guiana for years. Presumably he meant independence.

"The strikers have protested that if Jagan gets his demand for swift independence he will turn British Guiana into another Cuba."

"The uprising was touched off by Jagan's austerity program and its unpopular compulsory savings plan and freeze on vacations. But the strikers have vowed to continue their walkout until Jagan quits altogether."

Opposition to Jagan reached a climax this week with a general strike that paralyzed Georgetown. Friday it broke out into pitched battles in the streets. Demonstrators roamed the streets setting fire to stores and vehicles, looting and clashing again and again with police.

Riot squads opened fire on the rampaging mobs after failing to stop them with tear gas grenades. The rioters returned the fire.

At least three persons were reported killed and scores wounded in the early fighting.

An estimated 30 of the city's largest buildings were set ablaze. Harassed by the rioters and hindered by inadequate water supplies, firemen were unable to cope with huge fires that raged on into the night.

Opposition leaders Forbes Burnham and Peter d'Aguiar, defeated by Jagan in last September's elections, defied a government ban on demonstrations and led 20,000 strikers in a march on the parliament buildings. The mob broke through police cordons.

Jagan, who was ousted by the British in 1953 for being pro-Communist, appealed to the British for help.

Asks Clinic for Migratory Farm Worker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare Department officials pushed a bill today to set up mobile clinics for migratory farm workers on their annual months-long trek from south to north.

A similar bill has passed the Senate, and if the House follows suit it would mark the first time that federal legislation has been enacted to deal with the health problems of an estimated million migrant workers who earn an average of $1,000 a year.

Boisfeuillet Jones, special assistant secretary of the Welfare Department, told a House labor subcommittee that $3 million had been provided in the budget for the next fiscal year to get the program started if Congress approves. He said it would "stimulate local activity" to help migrant workers far in excess of that figure.

"Too often, migrant health becomes of widespread community concern only when an emergency occurs," Jones said. "It may be a child's death from insecticide poisoning. Or it may be the acute illness or death of young infants from diarrheal disease, an outbreak of diphtheria or typhoid fever, or a crippling highway accident."

"Then, local interest suddenly rises to a peak. Later it subsides, and the subject is quietly forgotten until the next crisis occurs."

Jones said three mobile teams of four or five health officers would follow the stream of migratory workers. Of the $3 million, $500,000 would be used for this and sending health officers to isolated areas. Another $2.5 million would provide grants to communities to set up clinics and provide health services to migrant labor camps.

Dr. C. L. Brumback of the Palm Beach County (Fla.) Health Department said his county has operated clinics for migrant workers for a number of years. "We operate out of a trailer," he said. "We go out to the farms. Farmers welcome this service. They ask for it."

There had been no arrangement with the White House for donations.

NBC said it had heard nothing about a donation being required for the showing.

James C. Hagerty, ABC vice president for news, was quoted by the Herald Tribune as saying such a donation would be against ABC policy. Reached in Omaha, Neb., where he has a speaking date, Hagerty said further that he was less concerned about quid pro quo than about the propriety of a TV network making a donation to a government or a government agency.

Lake Kariba in Africa's Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland will be the largest manmade lake in the Western World by 1963. Created by a dam across the Zambezi River, Kariba will cover 2,000 square miles and hold four times as much water as Lake Mead, the United States' largest artificial body of water.

DeGaulle Chance to Prevent Chao

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle, who is the cement holding his country together, may need special glasses to correct his grand vision of France's future.

This strongman saved the French from chaos closing in on them when he took office in 1958. If he should suddenly disappear from the scene now, they might tumble into revolution between left and right.

Under him, as he claimed in his recent TV talk to the French people, his country has become more prosperous than any time in its history.

To the dismay of the French in Algeria he was strong enough to face the inevitable: That there can be no peace there without a settlement with the Algerian Moslems.

But it is astonishing he has not felt strong enough to crush or even cope with the assassins of the French Secret Army Organization who have sought to frustrate his Algerian plans with bombs, violence and murder.

Over the years he has demonstrated a prodigious sense of rightness in himself and a mystical conviction about the glorious future of France.

In his TV talk he sought to convey a vision of France so aware of the times and the unfolding future that it was ahead of the times by becoming part of the future.

For example, he mentioned France's transition from feudalism to centralized government at a time when centralism was needed and feudalism was outmoded.

He cited the French Revolution of the 18th Century to illustrate France's awareness — ahead of anyone except the new American republic — that the world was moving into a new period of freedom.

But he has never fully integrated the French army in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and, judging from his TV talk, has no intention of doing so even though his West German ally is expected to.

He talked of reorganizing the French army into a new, atomic force. Integrating his army in a single military force with his allies, he indicated, would only make France a "back-seat nation."

Thus, at a time when there is talk of a United States of Europe, De Gaulle insists France will go it alone.

This can hardly appeal to the West Germans, who have wanted the closest links with France, especially since Russia is edgy about seeing a free, unattached West German military force of West German atomic power.

Reports from West Germany indicate his TV report to the French people got a bad reaction and that there is suspicion there he may want to hold aloof to some extent from full participation in the new Common Market.

In short: At a time when there is a growing sentiment among France's neighbors for merging their interests, De Gaulle sees France's future in standing more or less aloof.

Maybe he's right in thinking that this course also demonstrates France's awareness of the times and its historic rightness in the course he wants to take.

(Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Thursday night he agrees with De Gaulle's belief that he alone was the man helping restore French glory.)

But if De Gaulle is wrong in his vision of France's role in the future, he may have headed his country and Europe into one of its greatest disasters.

He's walking at this minute on a fiery furnace: On one side the murderous secret army which opposes his idea of freedom for Algeria; on the other millions of Frenchmen — Communists, left-wing parties and non-Communist trade unions — opposed to the secret army.

A week ago eight people—six of them Communists—were killed by French police in a riotous demonstration against the secret army.

This week hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen—they could hardly be all Communists—paraded in one of the greatest demonstrations in French history in sorrow for the eight killed and in protest against French police brutality and the terrorism of the secret army.

The Curse of Quarrelsome Parents

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I wonder if parents who quarrel ever stop to think of the dreadful, lasting scars they inflict upon their children. My parents, who will soon celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary, have fought like cats and dogs all their married life—to the anguish of their children.

We love them. In their fury they would hit each other and, if we attempted to take sides, hit us.

These degrading episodes blighted our home life and hampered our education. But out of evil sometimes comes good, for I pray never to lose my temper and, with God's help, never have. As a consequence, my husband, two sons and five grandchildren, are a peace-loving family unit forging steadily ahead, happy in our home and the company of each other.

If fathers and mothers who fight only realized the damage they are doing themselves and their children, they might practice more self-control. How can they be convinced that this is so?—Mrs. M. Warren, Ohio.

Dear Mrs. M.: There are so many reasons why people fly off the handle that until the cause can be determined, it is difficult to prescribe a cure. Heredity or lack of discipline in childhood are certainly factors. One thing is sure: most victims of ungovernable tempers are sick—mentally and physically. If the children are old enough, they should talk to the family doctor. If not, it is the duty of the nearest of kin to intervene before the quarreling ends in a tragedy.

Dear Helen: Against my better judgment, I gave my daughter permission to go steady when she was 14. All teen social life in our town is based on the "couples only" system, and a girl simply doesn't get a bid to dances, swimming parties or bowling, unless she comes with a boy.

The first eight months it was off with the old love, on with the new, but our daughter's current steady has lasted over a year and she frequently mentions marrying him as soon as she finishes high school—which, thank God, is nearly two years off.

He is rude, ignorant, and conceited, but in her eyes "cute" and "faithful" so all other faults are overlooked.

My remonstrances only make her firmer. When I remind her that at 16 she is still a minor, she retorts that nothing can keep them apart if she has to run away and marry him. Giving her an overdose of this little monster isn't the answer, for he is underfoot day and night.

The only solution seems to be moving to another town, but our families on both sides live here and we like it. My husband who has been against the "going steady" custom from the start, says it is up to me to figure a way out. I can't. Can you? —Upset Mother

Dear Upset Mother: How about sending your daughter to school in another part of the country? That would be less costly than moving to another town and of far more lasting value to her. Last fall I had occasion to check the boarding school situation for a granddaughter and came up with some excellent schools which were not too expensive. The headmasters and mistresses and the catalogs made them sound so attractive that I longed to go back to school myself.

Dear Helen: My parents are separated and because I was born of an unhappy marriage seem to hate me, which makes my heart-break doubly hard.

Last summer I met a man 11 years older than I (I am 16). The second month of our friendship he declared his love and asked me to elope.

I hesitated. My guardian angel must have been working overtime. Last week I found out why. He is married and has three children. He told me he professed love just for "kicks." I think of him 24 hours a day. He continues to phone me: Should I try to forget? —Desperate

Dear Desperate: Take the receiver off the hook. Bar the doors, draw the blinds. Do anything to shut this man out of your life. He is a scoundrel of the worst type. Standing as you do alone is all the more reason for being on guard. Take an experience such as this not as a heart-break but as a chance to develop your character. Having won out here, the next won't be so hard.

Carol Burnett Really Wants Stage Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Carol Burnett sounded excited, scared, and regretful all at once, discussing her departure next season as a regular member of "The Garry Moore Show."

"Garry said that it was time for me to leave the nest," she said. "He said there is always a right time to leave—that there came a time for him to leave Jimmy Durante and now the time has come for me to leave him, and I sure hope he's right."

At the moment, the only solid items in Carol's future as a solo comedienne-singer are frequent guest shots with Moore, and an October engagement in New York's Persian Room at the Plaza Hotel, which in the current super club circuit is what playing the Palace once meant to a vaudeville act: Tops.

What Carol really wants is a Broadway show—and preferably one in which she can team up with singer Julie Andrews. The two worked together so brilliantly on the television show that they will co-star in a special to be shown this spring.

And, if that show comes along—either with or without Miss Andrews—Carol is prepared to drop anything else for it.

ABC, which recently raided NBC and carried off "Wagon Train," now has lost one of its own top-rated shows to CBS. Next season "The Real McCoys" will move from ABC on Thursday nights to CBS on Monday nights, in the half hour currently occupied by re-runs of "Father Knows Best."

NBC finally made it official, formally announcing Johnny Carson as Jack Paar's replacement starting Oct. 8. Meanwhile back on his daytime "Who Do You Trust?" program on ABC Johnny seemed to be taking on some of Jack's mannerisms (plus some of Groucho Marx's old lines) in his "interviews" with odd-ball contestants.

Blytheville Base Bids Taken

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Coy Hubbard of Little Rock is the apparent low bidder for construction work at Blytheville Air Base, Army Engineers said Thursday. Hubbard's bid was $94,707.25, compared to the government estimate of $99,645.04. The contract calls for construction of a squadron operations addition at the base.

Builders Against Urban Measure

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Clyde Smithwick, a vice president of the National Association of Homebuilders, said today his group opposes President Kennedy's plan to create a Department of Urban Affairs and Housing.

Smithwick, a Pine Bluff real estate dealer, said the home builders opposed the plan because it does not give housing "a separate place at the cabinet which the importance of home building and housing needs warrants."

Smithwick said the home construction industry fears "the department as now planned would discourage and impede home construction by relegating the agencies concerned with housing problems to a minor place in the department."

The realtor said Kennedy had politics paramount in his mind when he drew up the plan for the department.

When Europeans arrived in Australia, about 300,000 aborigines inhabited the continent.

MOB VIOLENCE

The Great Teacher, in a great sermon, taught well, the lesson of self control. If we curb anger we need not worry about murder.

Anger is the motive power that leads to murder. How terrible to know that every angry man is a potential murderer. Everyone who is angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment. Matthew 5:22.

How wild, how intemperate, how satanic, how malicious is an angry mob.

They are men gone amuck and no human can expect fair treatment from the hot headed. We are a Christian Democracy. That means everyone of us takes the place of the king or the police officer.

We are, under God, keepers of the peace and of order. When the mob gathers, don't join them. Take your place by the lonely, the threatened, and insist the appointed officer deal with him.

For every man merits justice in America.
